Emotions & Elections

Isn't it strange how exercised some people get over elections? One can think a moment and the names of the most vociferous Democrats and Republicans come to mind.

If a Democrat said it, it's right. If a Republican said it, it's wrong. Or if it came mrom the Republicans, it sound. If it's a Democratic statement, it's leftwing propaganda! These people have their minds made up closed, and whatever happens, the they will always be on the same side.

There are others, who might change from time to time, and this ...ement is a majority. These voters try to weigh the facts. Certainly ...y will study the candidates. They will try to make the best choice.

The funniest human being of all is the one who knows he knows what the two presidential candidates really think, and what they will really do—in contrast to the obvious or expressed intentions. He can tell you quickly why you're a fool if you don't vote his way.

Close and contested elections bring out the real Americans in this Republic. We all have a right to our opinions. And any of us might be right — and the next fellow wrong. The guiding and main principle for intelligent citizens, however, is to remember that the next man might be right.

That means — even if you are hesitant to admit it — that you may be wrong. So it is never well to get emotional about elections. Vote your conviction. Allow your neighbor to vote his. If he disagrees with you, smile about it and realize he may be right.

And see if you can be better friends with those who disagree with you. That is the mark of maturity, wisdom and tolerance.

The Simple Values

We now live in a fast-moving world. Few among us are able to retain the simple, fundamental values in all our dealings with our fellow men.

The urge to earn the dollar is tremendously important. The urge to follow the crowd is sometimes almost irresistable. The urge to deviate from the truth is often powerful.

Yet the greatest men and women of our era are those who retain the simple and basic personality virtues. They may not always agree with the crowd. They may speak the truth when it is unpopular. But in the end, they wind up with the respect of their fellow men.

It is frequently difficult to be frank. It is easy to be a hypocrit, or a politician, and say what people like to hear. It is painful to lose business or a contract or a sale by sticking to high principles.

Simple, straightforward integrity and honesty will nevertheless bring permanent satisfaction and happiness when the short cuts will not. Therefore, reinforce your faith in the traditional Christian values of life and living.

Our lives are short. We can never come back over one day spent again. Opportunities to do a good turn may never reoccur. Sooner or later we must look back over a life completed and look ourselves in the mirror. What will be our verdict when that day finally comes?

Will you be able to say — "I've done my best"? Then the money will be unimportant. The so-called pressure will not matter, the sunshine of friends will not be worthwhile. It will be you and your conscience and your life — in total. If we live every day with these values in mind, it will help all of us — and our community, our country and all the world.

These committees make the policy determinations in the administration of the ASC programs carried out in the county under the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Hixburg

Mr. Joel W. Coleman was 97 years old on Oct. 20.

On one of his good days, it would do a person good to go into Mr. Coleman's room and see how cheerful and actively interested he is in the Presidential campaign, and tobacco progs.

For two years now, he has not been able to read the news papers, but he can recognize his friends who call.

Sunday, some of his children came to celebrate his birthday, but he was not at all well, and a Dr. was called in.

However, they went in to see him by relays. They were his daughter, Mrs. Jessie Coleman Hanks and husband of Richmond; another daughter, Mrs. Otis Mc Phillips, and husband, two grand children, Mrs. Hilda Williams and husband, Watkins McPhillips and wife of Richmond, and a special friend, Mrs. Elsie Anderson, of Farmville.

Mr. Coleman lives in the home of his son, Mac.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hix of Richmond were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson Hix.

Mr. Tom Hix and Miss Kathleen Hardy of Leesburg were quitely married in Frederick, Maryland, at the First Baptist Church at 3:00, P. M. on Sept. 2. At present they are living in Richmond.

After a long illness, Mrs. Gladys Baldwin is well again, and is happy to be back in her own home in Pamplin.

Miss Bessie Irving returned on Thursday after being in Richmond two weeks for medical treatment.

Mrs. Lillian Cary will move into the Presbyterian Home for Ladies, in Richmond on Tuesday Oct. 25. Mrs. Cary has been an active worker in Grace Covenant Presbyterian Church, in Richmond, for sometime.

Mrs. Mae Gilliam Cleland of Richmond was weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harwood and son, Richard of N. J. visited the homes of Mr. John W. and William Hix last week.

Lynchburg, Virginia

Miss Frances Hatcher, our new H. D. County agent, was with us when the club met in the home of Rev. Jim Carson on Thursday afternoon.

The thirteen members and two visitors, Mrs. Alfred Jamerson of Charlotte, and Mrs. Mary Mitchell of Lynchburg, were impressed by the quiet unassuming manner in which Miss Hatcher joined the discussions.

Cooking ahead was the topic for the day, and Mrs. Jim Williams, president, demonstrated a sausage casserole. After the sausage casserole and coffee had been served, Mrs. Carson came in with a large pound cake covered with white icing.

The wife of the new minister, the Rev. Leslie Hart, of Elon Baptist Church at Pamplin invited the club to her home for the November meeting.

Officers are to be elected at that time. Mrs. Bertha Dickerson, chairman, and Mrs. H. M. Marshall and Mrs. Boyd Ford were named as the nominating committee.

CLUBS SET UP WELCOME SIGNS

Welcome Signs adorn highways.

Over 200 4-H roadside welcome signs adorn Virginia's highways in 59 counties now.

State 4-H officials at VPI say the official 4-H roadside sign for Virginia is painted on aluminum. It carries the 4-H colors with a white background and green letters. In addition to the county name and welcome message, the slogan "Drive Safely" is inscribed. So the signs make suitable club projects and fit well into a county or club 4-H safety project. Orders are approved by county agents and sent to the state 4-H department at VPI.

Also available now is the official 4-H honor club emblem, a 4-leaf clover bearing the fifth "H" for Honor. This gold-filled pin has just recently been stocked. Only 4-H honor club members are eligible to wear the emblem, which also can be ordered through county agents.

DIRTY THIEF

Des Moines, Iowa — A dirty burglar who entered the house of George Romanelli made a clean getaway.

The burglar took a bath in Romanelli's home and also took four pairs of trousers and eight pairs of men's shorts. He left behind his dirty clothes — and a dirty ring in the tub.

TIPS FOR THE HOME

Boys like actractive rooms of their own, says Miss Ruth Jamison, house furnishings specialist at VPI. Discarded furnishings from other rooms of the home, which too often land in the boy's room aren't always desirable, she says.

Boys can sometimes get the cooperation of all members of the family in planning a room where they can entertain their friends or do their homework. Miss Jamison suggests:

If you have an old bureau, remove the mirror to make a sturdy chest over which the mirror is hung. Use a spring and mattress on a metal frame to turn his bed into a day bed.

Develop an attractive color scheme. For instance, with bone white walls, you might use a denim day cover in dull gold trimmed in blue with matching cafe curtains.

A blue denim bolster attached with self-made strips over a wooden pole and fastened to the wall will add a note of comfort.

Every boy wants bock shelves. These can be fastened to the wall above the day bed, or they can be used on the chest of drawers if he is willing to forego his mirror. The boy wants his world to be masculine and uncluttered but with comfortable chairs, and perhaps a few cushions in accent colors such as blue, gold, and red. Colorful accents can also be created with a globe map, model airplanes, and books.

SINECURE!
